

Rotary 2-6-18

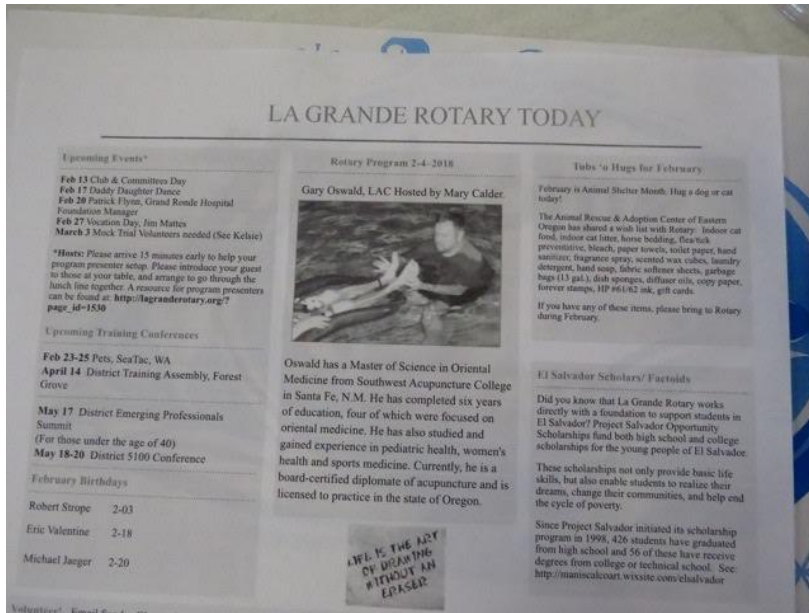

Two fisteds, Zee prepares for a long lunch meeting. "Notice I left some room in each glass. Dave has this little silver flask back at the table...."

"Excuse me sir, is this seat taken?" Graham hardly recognizes Doyle after his long absence in Florida.

“So, if you want to get in early on this deal, let me know. I’m cornering the market on NASCAR decorator plates—you’re gonna be rich!”

So, you might be wondering, "Why did Eric take a picture of the Bulletin?" Don't you always wonder about a lot of things Eric does?

Spencer joins Rick, Shane, Michelle, Jerri, Mary, and speaker Gary around the table.

"I pledge allegiance..." The term 'allegiance' is slowly slipping from our common usage. Perhaps counter to the culture shift, Rotarians believe in loyalty, faithfulness, honor, fidelity, and devotion.

Jim Mattes introduces Brent Clapp while Angel AI receives illumination from above.

Just like at a family Thanksgiving dinner, the “boys”, Jason and Joel, are relegated to the kiddie table in the kitchen.

“Shane saw a rat this big in Jeff’s storage area while we were digging out Daddy Daughter Dance prizes.”

“You put your left pin in, you twist it all about, you put your right pin in and give a little shout. That’s what acupuncture is all about.” Host Mary Calder listens to speaker, Gary Oswald, choreograph his chi map.

“Does this hurt? How about here?” Gary pokes stoic Eric while Mary enjoys the spectacle.