Out of balloon animals, "Side Show" Kavanaugh resorts to silly glasses to amuse. Jean goes along with the gag although deep down, terrified of clowns.

Tanking up for a long, dry lecture, Craig and John caffeine-up.

“Here’s what I do. I just take this little pill and I sleep through the presentation—and half the afternoon.” Michael shares how he survived a career of tedious faculty meetings. Craig and John wonder how they can get this wonder drug.

We all have our strategies. Zee chooses sugar to wade through the presentation ahead.

Caught in their secret for getting through a long meeting, Jason and Joel get ready to play Grand Theft Auto as soon as the lights are turned off.

Just realizing what the program was, Sandra tries to explain to Michele and Mary that she is needed at the office—right after she has lunch.

Debra distributes the program, musing: "Orange and green just clash on the table..."

'Is this going to be on the test?' "No, Eric, no one has ever said that to me before class."

“ The Professor on ‘Gilligan’s Island’ and I went to the same University. I’d a got that part in the show if I had been a bit taller.”

Why indeed.
