Fun with Fund Raising

"Hey buddy, any spare change?" Glenn tries a new Rotary fund raising method as Dave and Dale try to ignore the grifter.

“Maybe I could do a little soft shoe out front with Glenn.” Greg brainstorms and demonstrates how to make Glenn’s street appearance more appealing.

Joel and Jean calculate Glenn's take while and Debra and Mary contemplate the moral dilemma of pan handling.

“Maybe if we took hourly shifts delivering pizzas we could raise more money.” Jean pitches an idea to Heather.

“If we run this Rotary post on Facebook and revenue it, we might be able to raise ¼ cent per click. I bet we would get at least 400 clicks. Kaching!” Brent gives Tucker his angle on fund raising while Jeremy Davis of GRH checks the ambulance reports.

Glenn calculates his hourly rate to determine whether soliciting spare change from Rotarians is more effective than collecting cans on the highway.

Mike and Craig look at the books. Maybe there's some hidden money here, somewhere!

“I think the old Rotarians should pay an extra tax to fund the club.” Doyle tries to convince Dale to pay more dues.

Spencer is surprised that he is on the hook to pay for his wife's lunch!

“He just needs me to break a leg,” Dale thinks as he listens to Jeremy Davis of GRH telling Rotarians how the hospital raises money.
